

MIND BODY Origins

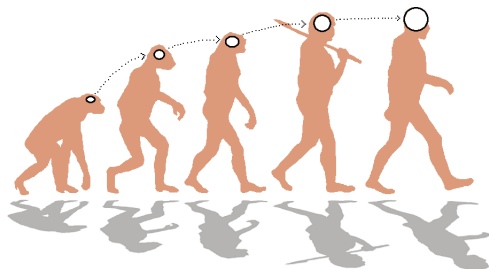

Body creates mind & body.

Minds come into existence in individual bodies and go out of existence  with the death of the body.

Each mind is a unique event. Differences are caused by unrelatedness. Similarities are coincidental.

Minds come into existence from the minds of their parents and go out of existence with the death of the body, but transmit parts of themselves in their offspring.

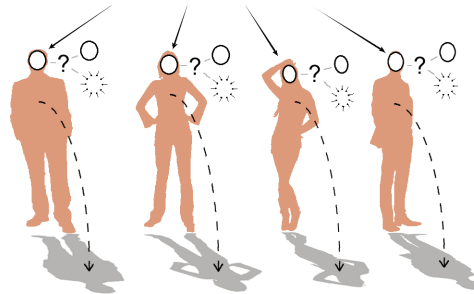

Mind creates mind & body

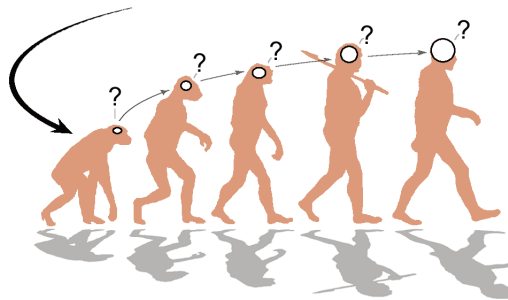

...by choice.

All minds are created by one mind, and may or may not (?) go out of existence with the death of the body. If minds survive, they are judged by their Creator and go into another body. Similarities are caused by common origin. Differences by heredity & environment.

Each mind is created by separate act.

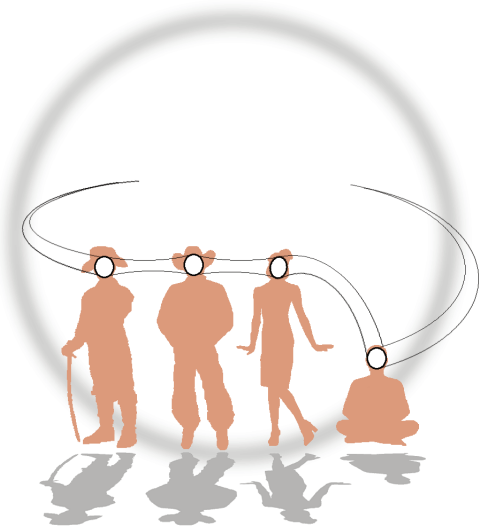

Minds are created genetically like bodies.
(Creationist need pay attention to only the last two.)

...by necessity.

All minds are parts of one super-mind. Defects cause some of them to have to go thru incarnations until those defects are resolved, and they are reunited with the super-mind. Individuality is an illusion. Similarities are caused by participation in the same whole. Differences are caused by defects.

Each of these categories can be further subdivided into those that include animals, and those that say only humans have minds.